- my 2?

Catwoman was an ok alternate universe kind of movie, until she did the 'Meow' thing during the robbery scene. I couldn't shower enough after watching it. The dead rubber cat thing on her head was annoying as well.

Hulk was good. I liked the cinematography and the overall theme. The CG was good. There is NO WAY on god's green earth they could have done that with a live actor! PERIOD. I will argue that point with anyone. Lou Ferigno looked cheesy enough in his getup back in the day. If I'm paying $8.50 to see a film, it better not have some overmuscled goon drenched in green paint.

I like the directors cut of Daredevil better than the theatrical version. It told a much better story. Oh the jump thing, It's a comic book movie. Frank Miller had people leaping about in impossible ways, why can't they do it in a film version. (Frank's cameo did kick a$$ though.)

Elektra, I haven't seen. Not sure I want too.

Fantastic Four. If you though the plant thing was implausible, you should see the Corman version. CRAPTASTIC!

Dolf/Punisher, I'll be putting that right next to my Steel DVD.

X-Men, 3 was the weakest of the trilogy. But I will proudly own them all.

Thomas Jane/Punisher, I own it and love it. The cinematography on that film was great. At least he didn't get the girl. I liked that bit. She threw it at him and he went, "Ah, no."

Spiderman, I've said it once and I'll say it again. How the hell could a poor high school kid afford to make webshooters? Where his lathe and other expensive equipment to manufacture such a device? It was nice in the quaint 60's era but now it is old and busted.

Ghost Rider, I can't wait to see it.

Superman I, I just bought it and watched it again for the first time since it came out in the theaters. (Yeah, I'm old.) I'd forgotten how much of Krypton was in the movie. It has a cheesyness factor to it, but that's part of it's charm. Is it high art? No, but it doesn't suck.
