Well...I like the Smackdown, and hope they bring it back next year. It make me remember an old tv show we had here back when I was a kid where every week a new artist did a new page of a comic story. At the end of the season the all story was sold and the profits donated to charity. And I like to see what the talented and couragous people who dare to enter the challenge in the Smackdown come up with every time they post a new piece. It's great to see how each artist try to protect his character and make a fun story at the same time.

But I agree that this site inspires me to try my best each new work I make. I watch all my work here since the beginning and it shows. It's not great or even that good, but I think I'm in the good way thanks to all the comments and suggestions from the people here.

Heck, looking back, six months ago I couldn't imagine me doing this kind of stuff.
