This is a universal problem to all art sites. At least the ones I belong to. Not sure there's much that will work and encourage others to comment. I know I have a problem commenting as much as I'd like as well. Between my job, family, etc, and then my own artwork...those few minutes to leave a comment or two become valuable. :) Maybe there could be some sort of reward system. A point for every comment you leave (only one per image) and those points earn you something. Not sure what, maybe they unlock special gallery postings. Any ideas?
