Well obviously higher rankings, 7 and above, really comment for themselves.

I think we are all here to develop our chosen art form and certainly appraising our body of work from time to time is helpful, plunking a 6 to a 1 rating just to metaphorically say "YOU SUCK" or I want my work to have a better rating than yours is just infantile.

If someone wants to critique then critique.

That is why I only rate and comment on ones I really like or if a newbie shows up to help them along. I rarely number rate new artists.

To be honest someone's number rating doesn't bother me that often I, just needed to blow off some steam.
