Two things I can't stand about these new cop shows are;

1. fingerprints. Computers can't scan fingerprints like that, it's all done by people.
2. enlarging a photo and enhancing it to see the murderer's face in the reflection of a drinking glass or something. Most photos don't have that much resolution, and you're not going to make things like that appear.

From there things just get more and more stupid. Labs full of millions of dollars of equipment and officers who spend days working on one case at a time (who fund these CSIs?). Plus they can hack into every computer that ever existed in 3 seconds.

Oh hey, you burnt the letter but we put it back together and used the DNA from the gum you left under a table at McDonald's 15 years ago to link you to the sand that could only come from Spain... making you the murderer!
