I have a wide screen monitor and the full screen option just shows the lower half of the page without any ability to scroll... could be my browser, but I prefer the other option in light of this.

Bio, If I remember correctly from a past test I did, You belong to that 0.00001% of the population that has javascript disabled on their browsers.

And all options I put to test so far need javascript enabled to be fully functional.

But... thinking about you (and the rest of those who don't have javascript enabled), I tried to find a way to show the comics without javascript (although an updated browser is a must) and here it is:

Option 4

The voting continues...

OH and btw, on option 3. although the scrolling ability, the idea is to use the keyboard arrows up&down to read the page.

Um, does that mean you're not counting Bio's vote for option 2, O?

I use javascript enabled and have no problem running any of these viewers. While I do think option #3 is cool and quite slick, I don't like the fact that it doesn't seem to zoom out and I find often enough, comic pages are designed to be viewed as a whole page for maximum effect and not being allowed to do that diminishes the viewing experience for me. The same is true of option 4. This is why I voted option 2.
