Huh? how does posting anonymously stop you from "seeing all the pictures?"

judges have already expressed discomfort, being critical with the work of their peers, and judging anonymous pictures (even if you know its 1 out of 2 of your friends), helps the judges feel more confident in giving an unbiased opinion..

Ok big Guy here is what I mean.

You have to have a user account to post. So posting anonymously would be impossible because you would have to log in to post. Unless we created new accounts for every duel, we would know who posted it and creating new accounts would just be a waste of DB space. So I figured that by posting anonymously, you meant via e-mail or something else, since it can't be done here. No big deal. or did you have something else in Mind?
