Congratulations! As the proud father of 3 (1 girl and 2 boys), I can tell you what all the experts say:

With 1, you've got them out-numbered.

With 2, you can still play man-to-man.

With 3, all you can do is drop back into zone coverage...and pray!

Welcome to the zone!

(Of course, I don't know how twins factors into the mix, but it must be a real fun and challenging experience!)

Oh, BTW, everything you've heard about boys is absolutely true. They live in a world all their own and sometimes, albeit rarely, come upon the realization that there is another world, the real one, out there. Like when I had to remind my youngest son to lift the toilet cover, not the seat, mind you, but the actual cover, AFTER he had started going. Of course, it helps if you look down before you go...

But I love both my sons dearly and wouldn't trade them for anything in the world!

Again congratulations and welcome to the club!
