So I was just looking at the forum threads and noticed someone hogging all the top spots pushing their own agenda.

And I remembered something that came up recently in Penny Arcade, nowadays companies pay people to infiltrate forums and subtly promote products.

Details here and here (scroll down to the [Begin message]).

So next time someone tries to tell the rest of us 'Catwoman is a good movie' - be suspicious.

Of course we have an advantage here in that artists are probably not intruders... no one would trust a demented artist with promoting their products.
