I never paid attention to the Avengers (though I'll admit to watching the new animated movie and the old cartoon). Every time I saw the cover they had new members on the team. I hate that. I like to stick to characters I know. It means more when they get their own story plot. I only looked into them when Firestar joined the group. As soon as she became "reserve" I gave up.

I'll admit that once Marvel made everything Ultimate I quit buying comics all together. I've yet to see one that grabs my attention. X-Men in the 90's is what got me into comics and I don't like that they have New X-Men, Ultimate X-Men, Academy, and all the others that are out there. The more titles they added the less I wanted to read them.

So I'm at a total loss now when it comes to comics. I think that's why I write. I can do whatever heck I want.
