that is kind of a narrow view of comics, movies, tv shows and video games. Lots of characters from movie, tv, comics, and video games are in multiple genres. Video games turn into movie that become comics that are turned back into games that get a tv spin off. I don't think I would say Star trek is just a TV show. it is Star trek and it is what it is, a multi-genre licenced property. And yet Startrek did have a ongoing comic series. So yes Captian James T Kirk is a comic character. he is also a movie character, a video game chanracter and a tv character. he has also been in Books, and role playing games and many other things as well. Many popular characters and universes have sucessfully crossed over many genres as well. Like star wars, tomb raider, Superman, Batman and many others.
