This subject is disturbing to me. Please read the following.

We recently had a member (redfuryx59) post an image in the adult gallery that contained a depiction of a child engaged in a sexual act. This was a 3d image and not photo-based but it still was not appropriate and down right sick. I know that the posting policy does mention that all models must be 18 and this does include 3d images, kid porn is not acceptable period. Since the person that posted the image has a dynamic IP address that he actually shares with a number of members here it would be very difficult for us to ban him completely. We have banned some of the IP ranges that we have for this person and have also scrambled their user account password. If redfury aka kalel aka popejazzyjames joins the site again, we will delete any future accounts and any future posts, whether they conforms to the posting policy or not. We are also going remove all of his art that he has posted on this site to date. The posting of images involving children are not permitted on this site and goes against good taste and basic human decency. To say the least, I was not happy to see the image posted and after talking to the other moderators and heralds we have decided to ban Red. In the future if anyone posts an image like this you will also be banned, no excuses, no coming back, no forgiveness. We do not need people like that on this site. There is a lot of sick stuff on this site but that is going way beyond anything that has ever been posted here before and in not acceptable in any way, shape, or form. This is the first time we have had to make a post in this regard and I hope it is the last. I would rather turn off the site completely then see sick shit like that. I fail to understand why someone would think posting material like that would be OK. To say the least I think Red should seek out some professional help (I am not being sarcastic). It is a sad day at HM, I always hoped that I would never have to make a post on this subject and I hope I never have to again.
