

Forum: Movies & TV

Topic: X-3

Subject: Re: X-3

Posted by: chillyplasma

Posted on: 2006/5/31 2:39:14

MHO on some of the questions:

Colossus was probably hiding from the burning cars because of physics.

I assumed Psylocke was using her telepathy to make everyone not see her.

The cure darts could have had needles made of glass (makes about as much sense as plastic guns).

Wolverine found the camp by Jean guiding him with her mind.

I think the guy throwing bones out of his arms was supposed to be Marrow (but a male).

My personal view of the movie is the action was awesome, very comic-book style. Wire work sucked.

A lot of work was done to choose the right actors (even Kelsey Grammar fits the part).

Lots of references to X-Men comics that I enjoyed.

On the bad side, the plot is wafer-thin.

There are almost too many characters and most have very little character development, in fact all the previous main characters are marginalised and it soon becomes The Wolverine Show.

I also get annoyed when Wolverine stabs someone and there's no blood.

Action movie A+, compelling story D.