I've seen the awesome result that Howard Porter obtain with Photoshop on his new job on Trials of Shazam. Can anybody tell me how I can get that results on my inked pictures???

Thanks to all for your attention.

That's one heck of a question...

First off, looking at the work you mention, I don't see any inking. He uses som line, bit for the most part it looks to be digital painting over pencils.

Second, the guy has a mega grasp of working with color. The dude kills in that department. Anybody who can use more cyan, mauve, and yellow on a face than he does pink, and still create convincing skin tone is a freaking master.

Then his work in value on top of it is just bad ass as well.

Technique wise, it looks to me as if he's straight up painting.
