If this character isn't well written then who cares. Thats the problem with DC (and Marvel, and every other comic book company around). They come up with something cool, then it sucks after 12 issues or so.

Will she have interesting plotlines, or will it be that they will simply tie her in to what ever the hell is going on in the Batman's books. Thats what killed Nightwing for me, he would be in Bludhaven fighting against everyone, and then he would have to go off for his cross over into "Batman: The Guano Saga!" for three to five issues, and when he got back to his own plots the writers either changed or simply forgot what they were doing.
