I don't dress up at conventions, and I actually don't really own a lot of comic-related t-shirts. GASP! However, before I moved to TX and lived in good 'ol FL my wife and I would go with the kids to Disney World every year and attend their annual after hours Halloween event. There they let you dress in costume as you enjoy the park at night, no other theme park in FL lets you do that. Anyway, one year we went as Alice and the Mad Hatter and some dim bulb woman who was wandering around the park pointed at me and said, "Oh look it's Willy Wonka!" WTF!?!

Why the hell would my wife be Alice if I was Willy Freaking Wonka! And at Disney World no less, WW isn't a Disney character. Well, I just proved my uber-geekitude.

P.S. I think that I fit the bill for about 50% of that geek chart how about the rest of you?
