I say Superman doesn't have any interesting villains. Lex is okay, but... seriously.

DC has done a heck of a lot better with Batman. Sure, most of his villains are a bit over the top but they are still fun.

I think you are way off base here about superman villains. They just don't use the cools ones very often.

The Cyborg, Parasite, Mongul are all pretty cool. but the best of the bunch is Darkseid.

If they put Darkseid and his evil henchmen as well as the Para-demons you would have yourself a whole new kind of superhero show. Plus it would give Superman the ability to punch a whole bunch of things.

I always thought Zod was a Weiner. plus one thing that has always bothered the ultrageek inside of me. In the comics and to a certain extent the movies. Supermans powers grew as he absorbed the sunlight. Essentially he is like a solar battery and the early year he was charging. He developed his powers over time. When Zod and his 2 friends broke out of their picture (with the exception of the retarded one) they had full powers and the knowledge to us them. I would imagine suddenly being able to fly would be like learning to walk.etc. etc. Plus how come they didn't have a waiting period to charge up their powers like Clark did? Anyway the charging up from the sun of powers also explains why Superman can have a kid, unlike that Man of steal woman of Kleenex story BB posted somewhere.
