I am pretty much the epitomie of a 'lurker' (even though i hate the term). I've had an account since sometime last year and have yet to post anything. Ever. But I come here because I am a huge fan of comic books/movies/etc. and I enjoy seeing the huge spectrum of talent that is on this site when it comes to the various types of artwork. Granted, the likelihood of me ever coming up with something of my own is highly unlikely since I have next to no artistic ability when it comes to photoshop/posser/drawing and when I have gone to try my hand at it I have left behind tons and tons of unfinished projects in my wake. I hope to change that sometime in the near future should my school schedule provide me an opportunity to actually start/finish something. But keep up the great work with the site and keep that excellent art coming! Hell I may even try and start leaving comments every so often...
