More so in response to Bio..... In art... Big but natural is fine to me. Unnaturally big causes a disgusted reaction. In life..... I sat at a strip club and watched a woman dance, who had triple F's. At least that's what the billboard outside advertised. Those things were huge and I couldn't look at them without thinking about her chiropractor bill, the grooves in her back from the bra, if the immense weight of them would one day actually rip them from her body and leave blood gushing in shiny puddles all over someone's living room during a private showing. It was pretty sick. Not to mention it was the first time I ever gave a dancer a sympathy dollar.
