

Forum: HM General Chit Chat

Topic: My new bike

Subject: Re: My new bike

Posted by: JrMcDeath

Posted on: 2007/2/21 8:38:54

What the....

Ok... this is either a spooky coincidence or BikerBot has emailed you and told you to come give me crap.

Either way... welcome to Heromorph.

This thread is kinda like giving sasquatch sh!t... you don't exactly expect him to show up and talk to you.

I hope you did not take any offence to my remarks towards your machine. I was simply giving BikerBot a hard time... And I will still supply him with my Sheet parachute when he buys one of your aerocycles.

Talk to you later and I look forward to see working models of your flying machine.

BB... I know you are responsible for this.

Quote:

Adam Wrote:

No, on this design the tips of the propellers will be 45 inches to the side and 7 inches in front of the pilot. My arms reach is 35, from center of head to fingers. In addition there is the frame between the pilot and the propeller. This is on the twin-engine model; on the single engine the prop is behind the pilot.

Well, BB has nothing to worry about since his arms closely resemble those of a T-Rex.

