How cool is that?!

Dude, what you do has nothing to do with what we do around here, which makes this Thread even cooler!

Seriously, a buddy of mine sent me the link to your site, and I thought that quaint CGI Quicktime movie of yours would be a well timed post around here, as we have just opened our Three Dimensional Gallery, and it is very similiar. I think your bike's awesome, make a real one, we will be honored to make Photo Manipulations of it against the sky. Of course, it will be piloted by a Superhero, or more likely, Superheroine, but what's wrong with a babe on a bike?

Oh, and from now on until forever, feel free to bait and piss off Jr., his ego needs all the slapdown we can provide.

(But if you make him your pal, he just might make you a piece of art that will blow you away...)

Now, if and when you quit being an engineer and start spending hours of your time mucking about in Photoshop, creating images that less than 100 people will ever see, and yet absorbs hours of your time, then you will truly be a Heromorph member.

Until then, as I am wont to say,

Let's See More!
