oh well. that's cap out of the way with. . .and just when i was starting to like him. i'm sure they will bring him back next year in a blaze of glory, or transfer his consciousness to another body or maybe it was his clone that was shot and he is now an undercover agent for shield or maybe it was the hulk who sniped him phhht. . .

the one thing about marvel is that nobody stays dead for long. this reminds me of DC years ago killing off the man of steel (which i was happy about) and then re-incarnating him a year later (which was really lame). i have the upmost respect for all involved in the comic book industry but i would be nice for them to make a decision and stick with it.

hello

that was my first post

that's my cherry popped now on with the show
