True enough, but it's still not a "comic book weapon" when the source material for it is a movie and not a comic book.

It's a movie weapon that's been used in a comic book, not a comic book weapon itself.

Same goes for the Punisher's guns. They're not comic book weapons, they're real life weapons depicted in a comic book.

Of course I wasn't implying that a lightsaber has never been used in comics, that would be stupid. They've been used in video games as well, but that doesn't make them "video game weapons" either. Now the BFG from Doom? Video game weapon all the way.
