Forum: Gallery Art
Topic: FABRIC & Crochet TUTORIAL
Subject: Re: FABRIC TUTORIAL
Posted by: ortiz01lgnd

Posted on: 2007/4/11 11:42:10

Quote:

Biohaz_Daddy wrote:
Quote:

ortiz01lgnd wrote:

Can I just copy a piece of crocheted material and save it to my patterns folder? Would that work?

It could, but it depends on what you do next... give it a try.

I was thinking: Copy a piece of crochet material, save it as a pattern, then on the image use the crochet pattern and (to change the color) add a colored layer mask to it, set the hue to hard light (so it would keep the original's details while changing the color-- like the tut on how to make she-hulk). OR, I wonder if I could just do it the old fashioned way: Copy and paste a portion of a crochet image directly to a new layer over say, the bikini area, and adjust the size and shape by just using Elipt tool, free transform/warp/distort and the eraser. That way, I should be able to achieve a realistic crochet material look with less effort. Atleast I hope so.