Someone who's like a sister to me, recently had a birthday. I asked her what she wanted me to draw for her birthday and she asked for a portrait of her and her newborn baby girl. So I dug through her photo album and found 2 pictures I liked. I tried to stick to what I saw, but her father's jaw seems to cause problems for me.

So later I came back and picked a different photo of her. At the time I started having troubles again, I relied on what I remembered of her. From what she says, I nailed it.
