A conceptart.org I found a thread called Concept Art 101. In it she gives assignments. Which calmed my need to draw. And set forth a goal to boot. So lesson #1 was to pick something in your room and draw it. Leave enough space to redraw it. But when you do, change it somehow. I don't care how you change it, just as long as you do. So here was my first attempt.

since Buffy thought the 1st one was cute, I had to go back and do the lesson again. In which case, I think this lesson is one of those you can constantly do over and over and over. So here's attempt #2.
