The leg was just a missed line, but I see what your saying about the control panel (although the gatling does match the angle of the console). It's actually the tail of the bike that's throwing it off.

I subsequently scrapped this drawing because of the numerous little fuckups spread throughout. I like the concept, but this wasn't a very good execution...

Oh, and the dots at the end were reference points for the exhaust. Those were going to be put on in Photoshop...
