I've already got a kneaded eraser, remember? And it's doing the job.

I've just heard lots over the years like draw a line and then smudge it with your finger. I've even heard smudge it with tissue paper instead of your finger. And one of my problems has always been having the ability to go from dark to light in a gradual manner. I seem to do sudden shifts. And I know someone's gonna say the word practice, but you'd figure after 28 years something would give. And nope. It's still sudden shifts from dark to light.
