I forgot to mention. I went to a site Bio suggested that showed how to draw a horse. On there was a link to drawing dragons. I usually just wing it and do things however I feel. So I figured why not give their idea a shot. The retarded piece was my crappy first try. The second one is more along the lines of what they asked for.

So after that I started shading behind the dragon because they mentioned it brings out the drawing more. And then I figured what the hell and I ran my thumb across all the shaded areas just to see how it would turn out.
