

Forum: Gallery Art

Topic: TIPS and TRICKs

Subject: Re: Extracting objects from their background in Photoshop

Posted by: JrMcDeath

Posted on: 2007/8/8 14:32:23

Quote:

DPerceful wrote:

one of the true masters of photoshop, Bert Monroy, if you have a chance to catch this guy's seminars...i highly recommend it. check out his tutorials.

PixelPerfect at Revision3

Bert Monroy's site...and yes...that train station is all digital folks.

for those who watched the old tech tv, you will recognize many people at revision 3...and bert monroy was on the old screensavers show all the time. enjoy.

dan

Oh how he irritates me in a good way. He claims that if you spend more than 2 minutes on a certain area in your image that you are working on, then you are taking to long. I snickered and then he started.... and whollllyyyyy shnict! He has created a photo-realistic brick wall with graffiti on it in about 5 minutes. He is a god among Photoshop. So, yes... Catch a seminar... just to watch him work is worth the money... what you learn is a bonus.

Basically... Yeah, what Dan said.