well think of commission work like doing requests. except you get paid truthfully, the heromorph situation is different then most. Heromorph and you come to an agreement. wether it be the cost of a single character with a simple background or double characters.

then the winner of the contest will pick an artist from a list and Heromorph will pay you (if they pick you as the prize) The contest winner then tells you what character and/or characters they would like.

If the contest winner wants anything past what Heromorph has already paid for that is between yourself and the contest winner.
