I just want to say, that if I did indeed post any of your pics on this site, then I truly apologize and there was no foul play meant. I never claimed they were mine. But because you got offended, I was booted off of this site and lost the few Original pics that I did. Thank you. No one ever bothered to just e-mail me and have a conversation. I was impressed with "Whoever's" work and thought it needed to be viewed. Please forgive the ignorance on my part.

This thread is very very old and the person below was talking about this member as far as I know that Warren was never banned or kicked off because we always delete user accounts of those people we have banned or kicked out. Not sure why you started a new account since your old one is still here.

On a side note image posted under that account that you did yourself probably were removed during one of the many cleaning days that we have here at heromorph. We have these a number of times per year to save space on the server we remove older less popular images.

Also please note that the rules on posting and using artwork that is not yours have dramatically changed from the time that this thread was originally started multiple years ago.
