I just say that people like what they like and no-one can change that. If you like your own stuff that is good, but don't expect everyone else to think you're amazing 'just because...'.

The artists don't get paid or rewarded so they can create what they like, if it's the same thing every time... hey it's their choice to do that.

And again the viewers aren't under any obligation to comment, agree with or appreciate what is in front of them. For example a Supergirl pic will get more hits than an average pic, that's just the way it is.

If someone wants to paint big boobs and people want to look at that (or not) then it's just the way it is.
