While these may be interesting to some, one thing I noticed since they came online at this site is that the loading of the forum discussions takes a while. I see at the bottom of my browser as it counts down from some 200-400 items to load, depending on the length of the discussion.

While it doesn't take a really long time, some with slower connection speeds may find it slow enough to just not read anything, rather than have the load however many items it takes to just open that discussion page.
