the group thayne is referring to was called.

Captain Critique and the amazing review crew it was started around when the site was about one year old and people started saying they did not get enough comments and a thread like this was started.

the basic idea was that when a member of the group would post a picture all the other members of the group promised to comment. well it started off good. the first 2 images that were posted got comments from all the members of the group.

then they started to petter off, and the members said that it was too much work and they couldn't keep up to the posting of some members. a couple said that it wasn't fair because they posted 1 or 2 images per month and some people posted 5 or 6 images.

in the end it ended up being only 2 or 3 people commenting out of 12. then it just went away since it was obviously not working as we can not make people post comments if they do not want to.
