

Forum: HM General Chit Chat

Topic: Writers Guild of America Strike

Subject: Re: Writers Guild of America Strike

Posted by: JrMcDeath

Posted on: 2007/11/13 8:40:18

I worked on a film here in Austin, and the Union drivers had us by the cahones because they were the only one's allowed to drive the vehicles. And 98% of the time when you needed something moved the lazy fukers were on break. At one point in the shoot I had to literally beat up one of the drivers to get the keys to a truck that we needed moved immediately. And it was a good thing they were all on break, because his union buddies didn't step up and help him out. Unions are crap... I agree, at one time they might have been a good idea. But now all they are good for is... well... nothing. They put a strangle hold on the companies they work for. If you strike, you should be fired. And that goes for anything... including sports. Everyone is replaceable.