Some time ago I randomly found an auction on eBay selling CD Roms filled with images of manip. One of the preview images was one of my older manips.

It didn't bother me that he was distributing the manips.

It slightly bothered me that he was getting money for work that wasn't his (mostly that bothers me because whenever I tried to sell a manip Warner Bros. or someone would pull the auction... and they were letting this guy continue).

What really p!ssed me off was this guy had gone to the trouble of removing my signature from the image!

It's interesting what a quick search will come up with. I just found that someone who is a member here took one of my images, made a few small (terrible) changes and passed it off as his own. Bastard, at least show the original image so people can see it before the crappy changes.
