It was a rainy night at the country near a dirt road.

Then close to morning, a gun was fired and a human body fell down, dead.

One hour later, Sherlock Holmes arrives to solve the crime.

He sees the man dead near the dirt road and near by he finds some wheel tracks.

He decide to follow those tracks through the muddy dirt road until he find a house with the 3 men on the porch.

With a glimpse to the 3 men, Mr Holmes solved the crime and arrested the guilty one.

How did he do that, if none of the men was wearing muddy shoes or was wet or freshly showered?

Will post the answer in a couple of days if no one get it
