I had an Idea, and I was just wondering what every one was thinking.

BikerBot and me were having a chat a while ago and he was asking about the heromorph awards and when they were going to be held again. Originally I had planned to make them a yearly event but I am open to making changes. He (BB) suggested that we made the awards every six months or so. At the time I suggested, that we leave the Heromorph awards (the Morphy's) an annual event and have a second set of awards let an artist choice awards (or something) half way threw the year. I have been thinking a little bit about the site lately and with its uncertain future maybe we should hold the awards on a semi-annual basis because the site might not be here next year. Not only that, but the Heromorph gallery has had 753 submissions since Jan 1/04, and that does not even include the adult gallery.

Anyway, This post is just chiming in to see what every one else thinks about this idea.
