This is getting ridiculous. Is it an ego thing? Seriously despite chilli's couching his attack/rant in righteous indignation he is correct in that there are more important things to worry about. Not a single aspect of this so called "problem" has a measurable impact on your personal lives or on society as a whole. It may be a large dispute in the relatively small and ultimately disposable industry of film and television media, but it only serves as a distraction to our very real and much tougher problems yet to be solved.

Then there is the whole tree in the woods aspect. Did you hear that? Me neither.
