Last year Biohaz and myself came up with a simple concept of doing a comic book together. The idea behind it was to have no plan, not one single preconceived idea. I would do a panel then he would do a panel. Neither of us would consult each other about what we were going to do, who the characters were going to be named, what style or medium of art we were going to use.

It was a dream working with Biohaz on this, I can truly say I never had as much fun on a project as I did this one.

Here is the first chapter, let us know what you think.

you can find chapter one here
