I have to agree with PeterCotton. Redhead rock and screwing with continuity just cause without a really good reason and explanation is just FU. I stopped reading back in the late 80s when something would happen and things would start being explained... then just wait! The next summer event to end all events would take place. Nothing was finished and it was just a mess.

There are times when things get old and it is time to re-imagine things. DC did ok with Infinite Crisis. Marvel looked like the Ultimate series was going to be a good way to reboot, but they blew that like a $5 hooker. Same with House of M. They have really good ways of ending things and restarting fresh, but they will not follow thru.

The Skrull event is the next malfunction that is going to reshape the Marvel universe and will fall flat like an erection in front of Hillary Clinton.
