I'm sure many people will be suprised at hearing me say this, but I think the new Lady Heromorph fits the general tone of the site better than the first.

The previous L.H. seemed a little, well, fetishistic to me (muculature close to a female bodybuilder, big boobs [ ], and something very close to a string bikini for an outfit).

Now, I have nothing against fetish art; hell, most of the images I produce fall under that classification

However, it has always seemed to me that HM leans more toward pin-up images (despite the posting of images by me and others in the Members Gallery ). So, the new Lady Heromorph reflects this more (what everyone can see without joining the Members section).
