Michael: I don't know anyone who could get through the day without two or three juicy rationalizations. They're more important than sex.

Sam Weber: Ah, come on. Nothing's more important than sex.

Michael: Oh yeah? Ever gone a week without a rationalization?

[At Alex's wake]

Michael: Amazing tradition. They throw a great party for you on the one day they know you can't come.

Michael: [Michael enters the kitchen, sees Sarah standing in front of the open refrigerator] You know, that's the problem with these things. You have to watch them every minute.

[Takes a small carton of milk from the refrigerator]

Michael: Oh, hey, did I miss Karen and Richard?

Sarah: No, just Richard; Karen's staying for the weekend.

Michael: But not Richard?

Sarah: Went back to be with the kids.

Michael: Oohhhh, interesting. What did Richard have to say about that?

Sarah: Michael, if you're going to sleep this late, you're going to miss a few minidramas.

Michael: I just hope you'll wake me for anything really ugly.

Michael: Everyone does everything just to get laid.

Karen: Who said that? Freud?

Michael: No, I did.

Chloe: Alex and I made love the night before he died. It was fantastic.
[pause]

Nick: He went out with a bang, not a whimper.

Sam Weber: In Hollywood, I don't know who to trust. I don't know who likes me or why they even do like me.

Harold Cooper: Well you don't have that problem here.

[Sam smiles]

Harold Cooper: You know I don't like you.

Michael: Me neither.

Meg: Ditto.
