O.k. now you might wanna call weird or something, but is there some equation that dictates that a super heroines' breasts must be disproportionate to her body. Many times I have found that these said heroes have boobs which are twice the size of their head. Jean grey on many occasion must rely on her telekinesis just to keep those babies from dragging her down.

The fact that a lot of these ladies are meant to be built like athletes is contradicted by the fact that every time they run there is the potential for them to knock themselves out, who needs enemies when when they can get a concussion just from jumping on the spot.

I mean wouldn't it be nice just for a change to have a heroine that struggles to fill a B cup? The only time a woman has a small chest is if they are young, & even then it's not long before she fills out to the standard size, take the new x-men (new new x-men) when x-23 first appeared she was a skinny ninja kid, give it 2 year & they got her dressing like a prostitute with a boob job!

Now I'm sure this will invoke some sort of discussion, maybe I will find answer to this question. before you ask yes I'm a man, no I'm not gay, yes I like breasts!

Let the games begin.

BOING!
