Hey,

Well, because of the missing emails it's 8:10, which is pretty close. If there are any extra members they will be randomly paired with someone from the same site, it's a team competition so I don't think that will bother anybody.

I not in favour of an extended deadline as we could be waiting around for months while some get their act together and in the meantime others will lose interest. I think it's more an opportunity for slower artists to discover faster ways of doing things.

Also it will require more organisation and I will have to hand that to someone else as I can't commit to an extended project (got to take care of girlfriends and all that).
Of course it's up to the majority opinion/consensus/muscles.

Max - like democracy in action, only better.
