

Forum: Challenges & Duels

Topic: July Challenge (From the Maniper's Pot)

Subject: Clarification of my half baked points system.

Posted by: Winterhawk

Posted on: 2004/7/6 18:56:41

Ok so I will try to explain this as best I can.

You get 1 point for each user submitted base image you use. If you use all ten images you will get an extra 2 points for maximum of 12 points from this part of the competition.

The next two parts each participant will vote on the other participates picture on a scale of one to ten for two separate scores, One for overall presentation (how much you like the picture, as a picture) and integration (how well you think the artist put the base images into the finished picture, do they look like they just slapped them in or do they look like part of the picture). Of course you will not vote on your own work. So each picture should get 4 votes on the 2 categories. When the votes are in the average score will be taken and added into the total score. Max 10 point per category (20 points max).

Max scoring will be 32 points.

In the event of a tie, the artist that incorporated the most Bonus pictures into his work will be declared the winner and will win the prize. You can keep the prize for yourself or give it away to someone else.

Remember, you can only use pictures that you find on the challenge site. No other base pictures are allowed. I will subtract 5 points from your total score for each picture used from an outside source.

Any questions?

Any complaints?

Get to work

Winterhawk ???????? I think I just confused myself