Nope, don't like it. Mixing the galleries just means someone that wants to see their art of choice has to click more times. Mixing them together does not mean I will look at anything else more than I do now.

What I seriously hate is when I click on 2d, 3d, or manip subcategories is that only 1 or no pictures are showing up. I like seeing the last 10 postings of a category like it was. As it is, I have to dig to see what is new and I really do not like that.

For me what grabbed my attention most is the random images. Perhaps it would have in having the 2d & manip images be the random images in the 3d Area and vice versus.

I have never understood the us versus them mentality. In 3D, good post work is the same techniques that used to make manips. Good manips uses the same techniques that pencilers/colorist use. Sure things are applied a bit differently, but light, shadow, and composition is universal. It is all the same, art.
