What I seriously hate is when I click on 2d, 3d, or manip subcategories is that only 1 or no pictures are showing up. I like seeing the last 10 postings of a category like it was. As it is, I have to dig to see what is new and I really do not like that.

For me what grabbed my attention most is the random images. Perhaps it would have in having the 2d & manip images be the random images in the 3d Area and vice versus.

Nothing has changed with the galleries code or operation, we simply moved images from two galleries and put them together into one gallery. Then we turned off the other 2 galleries. the subcategories work the same as they always did.

While technically this is true, I think what Ty is referring to is in the current state when you click on the sub category of !2d you don't see a page of the newest 2d images. In fact no images are displayed because they are all in sub sub categories.
