Well with less galleries to look after we are hoping that the moderators and admin will have more time to both take part in things like this and admin them as well.

Sounds alot like this is the ultimate reason behind the gallery merger to me. Look guys we all appreciate what you do on a daily basis as far as maintaining this site ... putting together contests and what-not [lord knows I wouldn't want to do it]. I'm sure it can be overwhelming at times and if grouping the galleries alots you all more freedom and peace of mind, then just say so! I may not like the merger but I can totally understand.

You don't have to look for a secret reason for the change. The change was ultimately decided upon, not to get out of work, but to make the gallery more betterer. We are truly more interested in a more active gallery, than in the work that goes into a less than active one.
